To Whom it May Concern:

As the former Secretary of Commerce for the State of New Jersey, I have worked closely with individuals who have cultivated the ability to serve as "private sector diplomats." These are individuals who have a comprehensive understanding of the forces forging the global economy, have traveled extensively, have studied world history, and have honed protocol and diplomatic skills usually associated with individuals that work with the foreign service.

Adrienne Papp is such an individual. Adrienne possesses great refinement, along with a highly energetic personality combined with years in business development, sales and distribution, foreign and domestic market penetration, partnership building, contract negotiations and product, service & technology delivery. She is innovative and resourceful, persistent and persuasive, and yet understands how to treat government and private sector decision-makers with the protocol and courtesy that they demand.

Adrienne would be an asset to any organization requiring this unique combination of skills.

Sincerely,

Gil Medina
